

Katie Porter, MBA is Director of Research Administration at Hamilton Health Sciences, home to one of the most research intensive environments for medical research in Canada. Her team supports more than 500 researchers and their research teams and fosters the development of students and research fellows.

Katie is a regular lecturer at McMaster University, co-author of The A-Z Guide to Research Contract Review and Steer Your Career: A Research Administrator's Manual for Mapping Success and a frequent speaker at conferences, workshops and webinars. Considered a thought-leader in Research Administration, Katie is a role model for positive change and innovation in the field, with a track record of publishing and presenting in both national and international forums.

An editor for the CARA Connection, CARA mentor and SIG leader, Katie also provides strategic direction to the Society of Research Administrators International for their professional development program. Katie's books are used by peers at more than 450 institutions globally, and her exceptional contributions to our profession internationally were recognized in 2012 by the Society of Research Administrators International and in both 2014 and 2015 with excellence awards from CARA.
